SPONSORING BETTER GOVERNMENT

This newspaper is carrying a series of articles on the Duval County oligarchy that we think will open the eyes of our readers to the dangers that exist in the never-ending fight for freedom of individual rights. Included in this 10-part revelation of graft and corruption are many heretofore unrevealed incidents.

These articles have been written by two New York newspapermen who were able to approach the subject without bias and without political leanings of any kind. One of these men, Franz Rosewald, is a German refugee who was forced to flee from Nazi terrorism. The other, Frederick Hodgson, is a newspaper correspondent and magazine and screen writer.

Their approach to the Duval County story is so different and presented in such style that the reader will be engrossed from the very beginning. Those who saw advance proofs on the series say they could not put the copy down until they had read every article and we believe our readers will have the same reaction.

Throughout the series the thoughtful reader will be impressed with what can happen when people become complacent and negligent about their governing bodies. The reader will be able to grasp the awful significance of secrecy in government and how a cancerous growth of corruption and oppression can develop almost imperceptibly, until the citizens of a county are gripped in fear for their very lives and property.

The concluding articles of this series will show how this reign of terror never could have happened had Texas had laws that make public business public. They will show how 16 proposals for better government being sponsored by the Texas Press Association can complete the cleaning up of Duval County and prevent such a situation from ever arising again in Texas.

We commend this series of articles to our readers and ask that they lend their support to Texas newspapers in their effort to obtain better government in Texas. You can do this by appealing to your representatives and senators to pass these bills when they come before the Texas Legislature.

Just bear in mind that what happened in Duval County could happen in any county in Texas under today's tax laws.

Democrats Should Start Planning Their Campaign

This isn't a day too soon for the Democrats to start planning a candidate for 1960.

It should be pretty well established now that the old school crowd like Stevenson, Kefauver, Truman, and Harriman are no match for the popularity of Dwight Eisenhower and the youth and vigor of Dick Nixon.

Personally, we are of the opinion that the greatest threat facing the future of the Democratic party is no other than Dick Nixon. He is young, vigorous and one heck of a campaigner. Democrats who try to minimize this fact are guilty of hiding their heads in the sand. Several of Oklahoma's so-called big-shot Democrats joined in the melee to discredit Nixon and got their faces soundly slapped in the process.

Dick Nixon will head up the Republican ticket in 1960. You can go ahead and bet on it. And Nixon is popular with the majority of the voters. He helped Eisenhower, and the impartial political observers now are admitting this fact. But he still represents the interests that are detrimental to the small businessman, the farmer, and average peckerwood in the street. Dick Nixon will get stronger before he gets weaker.

The Democrats can prepare for 1960 by seeking out a young, vigorous leader with ability to formulate a program for the people and campaign as such. We venture the guess that by 1960 there will be a noticeable need for the return to the principles of the original Democratic party—but without a leader who represents these principles the Party of People will find going rough indeed against Dick Nixon and his banker friends from the industrial north and east. Now is the time for the Democrats to give their party a new and youthful appearance.—Ed Livermore, Claremore, Okla., Progress.

Leaf Ant Poison Available

The damage caused by leaf-cutting ants is well known to the agricultural producers of Medina county but how to bring this pest under control will get major attention during the next few weeks, County Agent C. B. Gaston, said today.

The control demonstration program in the county will be materially aided through a plan worked out by Extension Entomologist F. M. Fuller. Under the plan, a case of methyl bromide, which has proved to be an efficient material for controlling the leaf-cutting ant, will be supplied for demonstration purposes by a leading chemical company.

Medina county is one of the 64 counties in Texas to receive the demonstration material. Gaston said that methyl bromide is packaged in one-pound cans and that a special applicator is required for getting the chemical into the ant colony. Caution must be exercised in using this chemical, said Gaston, for it is poisonous.

The material will be used in Medina county not only to show how it should be applied but a close check will be made of the treated colonies, at regular intervals, in order that all interested persons in the county can be kept informed on the effectiveness of methyl bromide for controlling leaf-cut ants.

Arrangements can be made for holding a demonstration in the application of methyl bromide by contacting Gaston. During winter months is the best time to apply this poison to get the best results, Gaston said.

Demonstration Given Rio Club

Mrs. Estella Strayhorn presented a program on clothing when the Rio Medina Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Felix Stinson Jan. 17.

Seven members answered roll call by telling what attracts them most about a person. The hostess served a salad, cracker sandwiches and cookies with coffee. The next meeting will be Feb. 7, with Mrs. W. C. Whitehead as hostess.

Poison Available

The Castroville City Office has a new supply of warfarin, put out by the Fish and Game Commission for the control of rats. Farmers are urged to take advantage of the poison.

Hondo Needs Proper Drainage System

Have you ever taken a look at Hondo's streets following a large or even a small rain?

Proper drainage systems in Hondo proper would eliminate large puddles of water standing in the middle of intersections or even in private driveways or lawns. What is the answer to proper drainage?

The answer to proper drainage is construction of a drainage system, which means a bond issue would have to be voted on by the city of Hondo. If and when it should start raining here again, the present drainage system would not take care of run-off and many streets would be flooded. It's up to the City Council to float a bond issue and up to the citizens of Hondo to vote their approval.

KILGORE'S CAPITOL COMMENT

By Joe Kilgore

THE ROAD to lower taxes and a freer economy begins at the point of reduced Federal spending. Hearings will soon begin on the President's request for the biggest peace-time budget in our history. The Congress will examine each item carefully. My position will sometimes be a difficult one. While trying to be economy minded I will never-etheless fight to defend several items in the budget of special interest to South Texas. I think that they are good sound investments.

SOIL AND WATER research for South Texas came in for a big boost as the President requested an increase of $117,600 over the $23,620 allocated for fiscal year 1957. The work carried on at Weslaco, in close cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station there, will include investigations in soil and crop management and water management on farms as they are related to crop production; expand existing works to develop improved drainage practices, irrigation methods, water application systems and general soil and water management for more efficient crop production; studies of land preparation, water application for salt removal, soil amendments for correction of salinity and alkali problems, and soil fertility and structure problems. While we move ahead trying to improve our water resources it sure is good sense to explore every way to get the most use out of what we have.

A REQUEST of $675,000 was made to cover the cost of additional land, paving, design and construction of the Border Crossing Station at Brownsville, while $43,000 was requested for the Eagle Pass Border Crossing Station, both of which are urgent needs.

THE WAYS AND Means Committee, which makes committee assignments for the House of Representatives, announced that I will remain on the Committee on Government Operations, but that I have been moved from the Post Office and Civil Service Committee to the Committee on Public Works. This committee has jurisdiction over rivers and harbors, public buildings, Corps of Engineers flood control (except on international streams), and highway legislation, and will be directly concerned with several South Texas projects.

THE NEW UNITED STATES Senator from Texas, Wm. A. Blakley, has received a genuine Texas reception in Washington. All of us are proud to have him in the U.S. Senate. Even though he lives in Dallas, he is no stranger to South Texas. His wife's mother, Mrs. George C. Darnell, lived near Mission for many years and Senator Blakley himself has considerable property interests in our section of the state. He brings to the Senate a most significant knowledge of the agricultural, drought and water problems of the state.

REMEMBER I am here in Washington to serve you. Please feel free to get in touch with me whether you have a problem with the Federal government, advice you feel I should have, or merely an opinion to express. My mail address is Room 335, House Office Building, Washington 25 D.C., where my telephone number is National 8-3120, extension 259. My home address is 4848 Upton St., N.W., Washington, D.C., and my home telephone number is Emerson 2-7960. I shall look forward to hearing from you.

Seco Warns Washington About National Budget

Editor's note: The Seco Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm has gotten word of the national budget, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:
The other night during that cold spell after I'd gotten the chills done, they weren't actually done according to some standards but they were by mine, which is to say I just let 'em freeze. I was sitting by the fire reading the news from Washington. I got a copy of a newspaper I'd bought earlier in the day on the way near my house where it'd been off the radiator of a car. Somebody had tied it to the back of my block from busting, and I was interested in President Johnson's budget for this year. As I understand it, he says we'll have to spend more money but won't have to raise taxes. He says it will take about 72 billion dollars to run the government for the next twelve months, which is an increase of about 3 billion over what it took last year, and while I'll admit it doesn't make much difference to me, I don't know the difference between 69 billion and 72 billion anyway, they lost me way back there. I did notice that Ike's advisors were telling him that the increase wouldn't throw the government in the red, even without a tax increase, because they were figuring there'd be more money coming in this year because of more income tax payments because of higher incomes, and thus the budget will stay balanced.

Well, now, I'll tell you, I sure hope Ike ain't basing his plans for a balanced budget on any increased earnings on my part. I don't believe I can swing it. I'd sure like to help him out, but if the United States government is counting on me increasing my income in 1957 to balance the budget, they better re-figure the whole thing.

If the Washington experts are counting on me to keep 'em out of the red, my advice is to stop counting their chickens before their eggs are hatched. In fact, they'd better check up on the eggs too. My hens haven't been laying much.

Understand, I'd like to help balance the budget, be proud to, but any spending program in Washington which is based on the assumption I'm gonna make more money in 1957 than I did in 1956, just ain't being realistic. I'd like to help Ike balance his budget all right, but I haven't ever gotten around to balancing my own yet.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

OFFERS MORE ON FACING
UP TO OUR WATER
PROBLEM

LET'S WORK WITHIN OUR LIMITATIONS —
BUT WORK

In the matter of a permanent supply of underground water, our preceding discussion has had mainly a local application to a comparatively small section of a vast area of our state.

And what concerns a vastly greater and more widely distributed number of people is that concerning the water supply underlying the greater part, if not all, of the vast expanse of that portion of our state known as the Great Plains.

Deep borings have disclosed the existence of a widely distributed expanse of pure and wholesome water deeply buried underneath these more or less dry plains.

Since water is not a metal, such as silver and gold — though of incalculable more importance — it was reasonably not created and deposited there as they were, but infiltrated into and filled those vast underground cavities from the rains that fell from the clouds throughout the ages on those fertile plains.

Needless to say the level contour of the land surface, slowing down the flow off, was conducive to a vigorous growth of thickly matted vegetation, lying close to the surface, both combined was conducive to a rapid absorption of water, which eventually filled every underground cavity to the bursting point.

This is the process by which springs were formed — bursting through barriers too weak to counter the force of water seeking its level!

The same principle causes the flow of artesian wells; equalize the level, the pressure is removed and your well becomes a pumper.

Exhaust the supply and you have a dry hole or cavity in the earth's crust.

And that is the threat that now impends — that causes the present alarm over a "creeping" shortage of water.

It's man's exploitation of nature's bounty that creates his want!

Two causes for a depletion of underground water are traceable directly to man's behavior. The tapping of nature's store of underground water with ever-deeper and deeper wells is materially drying up the stores that ages have accumulated and much faster than Nature can restore the loss entailed by man's consumption.

And this process is accelerated by man's use of the soil.

Glance around you at the barren fields that were once matted with luxuriant grass that acted very much like a vast sponge in holding back the flow-off of the rainfall, thus aiding in its absorption into the soil, and note for contrast how bare the soil is of vegetation now.

Excessive rainfall — no matter how infrequent — instead of being held back and absorbed into the soil, later to bubble forth as springs to make flowing streams that gladden the countryside, sweeps down every slope, carrying with it a muddy mixture of the top-soil, thus depleting the soil fertility and filling up with silt wherever there is a naturally formed surface water reservoir.

Take a look at the site of the once beautiful Quilley lake for an example fit to make a Nature lover weep!

In the foregoing, we have attempted to visualize the problem — or at least, some of the salient facts of the problem — which must be met head-on by those to whom has been assigned the task of finding some solution of the problem of a failing water supply in Texas.

Regretful as it must be, a brief survey of all that has been said boils down to the fact that whatever is planned and attempted in the matter, must necessarily, let us not falter — surely deal with Texas and Texas conditions as they exist.

Water-waiting when we want it, where we want it, and water in sufficient quantity to answer all our needs is the demand — and nothing less will fill the need!

And here we are faced with the stark and paralyzing fact that rainfall, our first and primary source of all fresh water, is insufficient in Texas.

Whatever in the way of relief from what ails us must be achieved within the bounds of that limitation.

In the face of this grim reality, it is comforting to remember that Texas is blessed with a soil and climate which makes all vegetation quickly responsive to favorable moisture conditions and almost unbelievably resistant to drought.

So, working within our known but proceeding with due caution — in the endeavor to make ourselves safe against the admitted impending danger.

And let us not be so unimprudent as to let one good general rain cause us to forget — to the point of danger — to prepare against the ills such as these which we now face in fear and trembling!

Missionary Tells Grim Korean Story

A scene of great destruction in South Korea was described by Mrs. Anna Chaffin, for over forty years a Methodist Missionary to Korea, as she spoke in the First Methodist Church of Hondo recently.

More than 500,000 orphans have been left in the wake of military action which many say proved to be more destructive than even the battles in Europe or the bombing of Japan. Five Methodist missionaries were captured by invading Communists, and about 70 native ministers killed. Churches, homes, even entire villages were leveled during the fighting.

One native minister of North Korea illustrated the plight of many others, when he fled south of the 38th parallel rather than obey the Communist order to replace a picture of Christ with a picture of Stalin. A total of about three million refugees from North Korea are said to have left their homes for the freedom of South Korea.

Federal Control Set For Cattle Movement

Fort Worth, Texas — (spl) Interstate Movement of all cattle except steers, spayed heifers and calves under eight months of age come under Federal control Jan. 1, 1957 according to a recent announcement by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The action is being taken to curb the spread of brucellosis (Bang's disease) and will directly affect any cattleman who has occasion to be involved in the interstate shipment of stock.

The new rules were the subject of considerable discussion at a quarterly meeting of Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association directors held in Fort Worth Dec. 7.

Edgar Hudgins of Hungerford, vice-president and chairman of the Association's animal health committees, advised the organization's 10,000 members to start a herd brucellosis vaccination program immediately. "Beginning Jan. 1, the federal government will require a certificate of vaccination or a negative blood test of all interstate shipment of cattle except steers, spayed heifers and calves under eight months of age", Hudgins said. He also mentioned that there is a possibility of embargos from some states.

Hudgins advised cattlemen to carry out a program designated as Plan C. Under this plan all females between the ages of four and eight months in dairy cattle and four and 12 months in beef cattle must be vaccinated with strain 19 brucellosis vaccine.

"The state is furnishing free vaccine," he said. "Details can be worked out through local veterinarians." Under the new regulation cattlemen were advised that violation of the new rules constitutes a federal offense.

The directors passed a resolution indorsing work on carcass classing and meat grading studies and asked for continued studies at Texas A&M College, after a talk by O. D. Butler, head of the A&M animal husbandry department.

Membership of the Association now numbers about 10,000 and continues to grow despite drought and other unfavorable factors in the beef industry, directors were told. John Biggs of Vernon, president of the Association, presided at the meeting.

CRP of Soil Bank

Land eligible under the Conservation Reserve Program is land which was tilled or was in regular crop rotation during the first year of the contract period including also land which was established in permanent vegetative cover (other than trees) since 1953, and which was classified as cropland at the time of seeding.

The total of all annual payments under the CRP to any producer for any program year with respect to all farms in which he has an interest cannot exceed $5,000.

No crop of any kind shall be harvested for any purpose from the conservation reserve during the contract period. The conservation reserve shall not be grazed during the contract period (live-stock must not have access to conservation reserve acres.) The producers who sign the conservation reserve contract shall agree to establish and maintain on the conservation reserve (or to maintain only, in case an approved grass is already established) a permanent cover of grass. The producers must prevent the acreage in the conservation reserve from becoming a source of spreading noxious weeds. In Medina County sunflower, cocklebur, Russian thistle and morning glory are the noxious weeds that must be controlled. Such action shall include treatment of the land with chemicals or mowing.

In order to insure that a producer does not put land in the conservation reserve and then increase his production of non-conserving crops on the rest of the farm by shifting land from conserving or idle uses to non-conserving uses, a soil bank base and permitted acreage of soil bank base crops are established for each farm participating in the CRP. The acreage which may be devoted to the production of soil bank base crops for harvest in any year is called the permitted acreage. The permitted acreage is the soil bank base less the amount of land put in the conservation reserve at the $8 rate. A producer shall be considered in violation of his contract and shall receive no annual or practice payment in any year (1) If the permitted acreage for that year is zero and any acreage is devoted to soil bank base crops in that year, (2) If the permitted acreage for that year is more than zero and the acreage devoted to soil bank base crops in that year exceeds the permitted acreage by more than one acre of three per cent of the permitted acreage, whichever is larger.

The following shows the classification of crops that are soil bank base crops applicable to this area: corn, cotton, wheat, and small grains, including sorghums and sweet sorghums harvested for grain, hay or ensilage; sudan, millet, annual rye grass and similar annual grasses if harvested for seed.

When there is already adequate vegetative cover on the conservation reserve, the contract period shall be either 3 years or 5 years, at the choice of the producer, if the county committee determines that the conservation reserve is already adequately covered by permanent grass. If during the contract period, the county committee authorizes restoration or improvement of permanent grass in cases where the contract is for less than 5 years, the contract shall be extended for a period of 2 years.

When vegetative cover or other practices must be established, the contract period shall be 3 years if the county committee approves cost-sharing for establishing permanent grass or water storage facilities.

A producer may receive assistance in establishing permanent grass or water storage facilities on the conservation reserve provided he files a request and receives his approval before beginning the work.

For 1957 and later years, contracts must be signed and filed in the county office by March 15 of the first year of the contract period. The contract is a binding legal contract. It cannot be cancelled by the producer. It cannot be cancelled by the government except for violation of the contract. Under the Soil Bank Act a producer who knowingly and willfully grazes or harvests any crop from any acreage in violation of the contract is subject to a civil penalty. The acreage designated as conservation reserve and the acreage of soil bank base crops will be measured.

PERSONAL APPEARANCE

By Jerry June Berger

Ever wonder who Medina County's oldest citizen might be? We have a good contender for the honored position. She is MRS. LISETTE RIFF who became 98 years of age on January 15, and what's more she is in good health. Living at 1102 26th Street with her daughter, MRS. A. L. HAEGELIN, she enjoys life to the fullest. During this recent cold weather when the temperature sneaked down into the 20's, this pair of ladies ran into some difficulty when they had gas trouble and the heating system conked out. This would have been a distinct disadvantage to a less hardy soul, but MRS. RIFF came through the episode with nary a sniffle.

PA

MRS. A. D. PATTERSON endeared herself to other mothers of kindergarteners Monday, and to the youngsters themselves. Son DAVID was six years old that day, but realizing that ice cream and cake would spoil the appetites of a dozen or so children, she proceeded to take a whole lunch up to Jack and Jill school.

The entire affair was a surprise for the children and began when they came in and had party hats placed on their heads. Furthermore, they were sent home with candy and favors, so they couldn't have been more pleased.

The affair was also a surprise to the mothers when the preschoolers arrived home and announced they had already had lunch.

Kids look forward to refreshments just anytime, though, and cookies and punch are a highlight of the morning for the kindergarten pupils each day. We are reminded of the youngster who came home insisting the beverage that day had been "mustache juice" and upon investigation the mother discovered it was actually grape juice which will leave a "mustache" on a small lip that drinks too fast.

It isn't only the little ones who get an education from kindergarten. Their parents learn a lot too.

In the January 11 issue of the Anvil Herald the front page contained two stories concerning honor to our high school.

One was the story of three gridsters winning spots on the Class A All-State football team. The other concerned five band members winning spots on the all-regional band and two of these being eligible for all-state band. We feel that Hondo should be truly and equally proud of all these teen-agers — three making state in athletics, two making state in band. It takes a great deal of skill and talent to excel in sports just as it does in music.

While watching a portion of the inaugural parade on television, we couldn't help comparing bands to our own and thinking that ours, although not as large as some, would have made just as good a showing. We also noticed that practically all those big high school bands have boys as drum major.

We've said it before and we say it again, Hondo should certainly have some boys trying out for this post. Don't get us wrong, we think the girls are doing a marvelous job, but a little competition from boys would be a healthy situation. Perhaps the judges would still pick a girl for the post, but then they might not. The way it stands now, the winner is best of the girls trying out, but if she should win over boys in competition too, then she would truly be the best the band has to offer and could feel she was winner over all.

Yessir, we'd like to see some boys get into the act.

While we're on the topic of winning honors, perhaps we're being piggyish to hope that we win even more when we have obviously won a lions share already during this school year.

But some day we hope Hondo will go to state in such things as debate, declamation, one-act play contests, etc. Sure it is a lot of work, but it is also invaluable training for the students involved. There might be students who could never excel in sports or in band. Who knows? They might be the best debater in the state and the only way to find this out is to have some contenders each year.

Civilians Eligible For Help

Dependents of servicemen and servicewomen of the Armed Forces become eligible Dec. 7 last year for certain civilian medical care under Public Law 569, with the federal government paying the bills of private physicians and hospitals.

Brig. Gen. L. Holmes Ginn, Fourth Army surgeon with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., has announced that Texas doctors' fees for treating service dependents will be paid by the Finance Officer of Fort Sam Houston. Bills from Texas hospitals will be processed for the government by the Mutual Benefit Health and Accident Association, Omaha, Nebr.

Gen. Ginn said that the necessary forms for administering the new law will be mailed soon to all Texas hospitals, and that physicians may obtain their forms from those sources. Physicians will send the bills for their fees to: Commanding General, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Attention: Surgeon.

Until further notice, Fourth Army headquarters will conduct the administration of the law in Texas, with respect to physicians' fees, for all the uniformed services, Gen. Ginn indicated. These services include the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, commissioned corps of the Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service. Eligible members of these services include those appointed, enlisted, inducted or called, ordered or conscripted who are serving on active duty for more than 30 days.

Too Many Lawyers Occupy Congress

Babson Park, Mass., Jan. 10 — Now that the Senators and representatives have become organized, we are able to make a rough analysis of their ability and training.

Too Many Lawyers

It appears that about three quarters of both branches of Congress are lawyers. At first glance, this seems reasonable, as their job is to make laws; this, however, should be the work of professional clerks. The Congressmen should confine their efforts to questions of policy. Lawyers are trained to win cases, whether the defendant or prosecutor is right or wrong. The very fact that there are two parties to each suit though, only one party can win, and that both sides are represented by attorneys, is definite evidence that half of the attorneys are wrong! In the eyes of a statistician, this is a very poor record. If one half of the bridges built by engineers collapsed, something would be done about it.

Ninety per cent of the legislation today is economic. This applies to agriculture, to manufacturing, to general business, and even to pensions for individuals. There should be no gambling connected with such legislation. A table for Multiplication, Division, or Addition allows for no compromises. It is the same with policies; they are either right or wrong. They should not be settled out of court or in cloak rooms. All this means that three quarters of the Senators and Representatives should be nationally recognized economists. They should be qualified either to legislate according to economic principles or else not to legislate at all. This principle should have been adopted when the nation was on the Gold Standard; now that we are on the Political Standard, it is imperative. Some claim that more businessmen, labor leaders should take the place of these lawyers. The real need, however, is for trained and practical economists and engineers who know what is best for the nation and have the courage to vote accordingly.

Suez Canal Rumpus
Probably the Suez difficulty is due to many causes, but it was primarily a matter of politics. President Nasser, of Egypt, was playing politics to get the good will of his people while raising money to build the great Aswan Dam. Prime Minister Eden was playing politics to hold his position and not be thrown out by the Labour Party. Other countries involved — possibly including the United States — were considering their heavy investments in oil. Basically, however, the Suez difficulty is an economic problem. It is not the votes involved which should be considered, but rather the tankage, distances, freight rates and other important problems of international trade. Probably the final solution will reflect a mixture of politics, statistical facts, and world economics. This means that the solution of the problem will not be permanent, but will be a mere stopgap. This shows that courageous economists are needed in international affairs as well as in domestic affairs.

The custom of selecting our Ambassadors according to their wealth or their contributions to campaign funds is absolutely wicked. Such a policy may have been largely responsible for the fact that England and France acted without the knowledge of the United States or the United Nations. Ambassadors should be trained economists, which probably means career men. Representatives to the United Nations should be selected according to their knowledge of economics and their experience in deciding economic problems.

The Sanctity Of Contracts

Individual, national, and international prosperity depends upon the recognition of the sanctity of contracts. No individual, corporation, or nation can prosper in the long run without an earnest endeavor to carry out its contracts. This is a fundamental matter in connection with the oil companies in order to recognize the Ten Commandments. Honesty is not only the best policy, but it is the only policy upon which a reputation, or a business, or a nation can prosper and survive. No one nation should be allowed to interfere with the international trade vitally affecting all nations. A great need today is CONFIDENCE.

Of course, in discussing the sanctity of a contract, an individual, corporation, or nation is justified in knowing that the contract was not obtained dishonestly by misrepresentation, coercion, or bribery. It is possible that some contracts for drilling

Modern Pork Method Increase Net Profit

Modern pork production has reversed the old truism, "You can't raise a pig in a parlor". Apparently you can! And at a neat profit, too!

Southwestern hog feeders are showing interest in a recent housing and management practice that involved a "pig parlor" believed far superior to pens and wallows. The method calls for fattening of hogs in low-cost, shed-type buildings erected on concrete slabs.

This development approaches the broiler producer's concept of putting production on efficient assembly line basis. The idea makes it possible to market as high as 300 head of hogs a year with a minimum investment in money and labor, yet get maximum returns.

A group of hog pioneers came up with the parlor idea, starting with a turnover every 60 to 70 days. According to studies of the Ralston Purina Company, the first 32 hogs marketed from a "parlor" returned a labor profit of $6.32 per pig in 45 days on a 16 cent market.

A parlor 30x22 feet can handle 50 pigs weighing 60 to 80 pounds. Maximum efficiency of investment, labor and feed is claimed with a turnover ever 60 to 70 days. The cost of the parlor including equipment was about $400 in the experimental locations.

Feeders who have used the parlor system believe that their hogs show better carcass yield in addition to these stated advantages: Quick turnover of investments, fewer disease problems, ease of adaptability to either hot or cold weather, and higher daily gains.

Texas hog raisers way want to investigate this method of production, in view of the high competition for the consumer dollar. In addition, current hog prices call for low production costs in order to make a profit.

Information concerning "pig parlors" may be obtained by writing to John White, Commissioner, Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin.

Might Be Overlooked

Potential Water

Many thirsty Texas farmers and ranchers may be overlooking a potential water hole that's been underfoot all the time, namely the usually dry old creek bed.

In several instances, at least,
Texans have managed to make tanks of water from mere trickles, by proper treatment of nature's forgotten irrigation di-ches which run through most everybody's land.

Use of small check dams is nothing new, but seldom have they taken so individual a turn as in the case of J. G. Brunson, Lamar County farmer who sub-irrigates 50 acres of corn and bottomland alfalfa from an old horse-shoe shaped creek bed on his place.

Brunson created his irrigation supply by damming up the lower end of the creek so that water stands 10 to 15 feet deep in the old channel, now by-passed by the Red River. The dam raised the water table in nearby bottom lands to within 10 to 12 feet of the surface, creating a natural situation for sub-irrigating.

Another dry creek bed, this one in Williamson County, became an incidental source of stock water
when County Commissioner E.
E. Martinets of Granger dug out tons of gravel from Donahue Creek bed for road construction purposes. When now-rare December rains came to the area, the enlarged creek beds caught and contained a great deal of water.
Had the beds remained shallow, the valuable supply would have run off as it does in most cases to be swallowed up in the Gulf.

Use of small dams and ingenuity in at least one other Texas county are attempting to place run-off waters where they are most valuable - underground.

Several Uvalde county groups are attempting to check the vicious flood waters which come up unexpectedly with heavy rains along rivers and streams of the upper Edwards plateau.

In one project on the Leona River, the entrance to a large underground cave beneath the river bed was emptied of flood debris and fitted with a system of iron bars similar to a cattle guard. When and if the flood waters come, the washed-away trees, sod and grass will be swept on down stream while a sizable amount of the otherwise-wasted water should be sent to the underground cavity, raising the critically-low water table.

Small dams are also being spot-placed to retard the run-off waters in order to give them a chance to sink into dwindling underground supplies.

It is hoped the current session of the legislature will provide some financial means of furthering this most apt means of retaining wasted waters.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

AUSTIN, Tex. — Gov. Price Daniel has lined up an impressive array of goals for himself and fellow officials during the next two years.

His message to the Legislature detailed 25 points. He labeled four as "emergencies."

Getting top priority were (1) water conservation (he suggested doubling the proposed $100,000,000 bond program), (2) additional highway patrolmen and other safety measures, (3) laws to facilitate right of way buying for highways and (4) a crime commission to guard against official misconduct, curb lobbying, etc.

Governor Daniel also recommended pay raises for teachers and state employees, local decisions on school segregation, increased old age pensions, abolition of dual banking-insurance operations, more money for insurance law enforcement, improved penal statutes for insurance and security controls, use of state funds for advertising and upping workmen's compensation benefits.

He said he favors a $5,000,000 prison building program, a paid adult parole system, laws to curb juvenile crime, revision of the state constitution, a continued state office building program (including an archives building, improved narcotics laws, study of the needs of the handicapped, election law changes and long-range study of the state tax structure).

Legislative comment following the talk was favorable. Enactment of the total program would almost certainly require more revenue than the state has in sight. Daniel made no flat promise against new levies, except for sales and personal income taxes.

His budget message, to come later, will detail costs with suggestions for new revenue, if necessary.

Well Healed Cowhand

Texas' new temporary U. S. Senator, William Blakely, personifies the Southwestern success story.

He began his career as an Oklahoma wrangler, went on to become a Dallas lawyer, CPA and top-bracket financier. His millions are spread among tremendous real estate and oil holdings, three insurance companies and a controlling interest in Braniff Airways.

His first whirl at politics seems destined for success too. He is a friend, not only of outgoing Gov. Shivers, who made the 11th hour appointment, but also of new Gov. Price Daniel, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson and President Eisenhower.

Blakely said he will vote with Democrats in the Senate, not upsetting the party's perilous 48-47 majority. Nor will he seek election.

Senate Leaders

Key chairmanships in the Texas Senate are in the hands of Sens. William S. Fly of Victoria and Wardlow Lane of Center.

LT Gov. Ben Ramsey assigned Fly to the finance committee, Lane to state affairs. Gen. George Parkhouse of Dallas, who headed the interim Water Resources Committee, will be water and conservation chairman.

Texas Congressman Says Biggest Problem Is Water

Congressman Jim Wright of Texas has introduced a bill to help states and cities promote the construction of long distance water pipelines.

The bill would authorize the Federal government to purchase a portion of the bonds issued for this purpose by local units of government.

It is designed as an aid to cities of all sizes, with a provision for assistance to Interstate Compacts in which two or more states would join in such a project.

Wright, a member of the House

Public Works Committee, said he believes this is the next logical step in solving the increasingly critical water problem.

"We are entering an era in which we must add an entirely new dimension to our water planning," he said. "Underground water tables are falling, and no longer can we assure adequate supply simply by erecting dams and impoundments."

"More and more local governments are learning that the solution to their water problem lies many miles away."

A major bottleneck, he believes, is in the average town's ability to finance such projects.

The bill would let the government buy up to $5 million worth of bonds when the Corps of Engineers certifies that a project is feasible, would aid beneficial conservation in the river basin, and would not adversely affect flood control.

Water supply would still be primarily a local responsibility, Wright points out. Any development under the bill would have to be carried out in compliance with state laws.

"The government would simply be extending a helping hand in a practical and constructive manner without in any way violating local responsibility," he declares.

The author has been active in the field of water development for several years. Last year he steered through the Congress a bill to help Fort Worth out of a pending water crisis by authorizing use of water in Benbrook reservoir, a federal flood control structure.

Prior to coming to Congress, he served as Mayor of Weatherford where he spear-headed negotiations for a municipal lake. He also served as President of the League of Texas Municipalities which brought him in contact with the water problems of more than 600 Texas cities.

"I am convinced," he declares, "that the most urgent problem in the western half of the United States is developing long-range solutions to the growing demand for water."

He believes the problem will grow, even if the drought should break, because most towns are growing and all are using more water.

This Week

--In Washington

By Clinton Davidson

The new Congress has been in Washington for only three weeks, but it already has made two points perfectly clear. First, that it doesn't like the present farm program, and second, that it doesn't have much hope of doing anything about it.

Barring some unexpected development, President Eisenhower and his Agriculture Secretary are going to have pretty much a free hand in trying to solve the farm problem during the next two, and probably four, years.

The President likes the farm program now in effect and feels that there is very little additional authority he needs from Congress. Congress, likewise, recognizes that there is almost no chance of passing farm legislation which the President does not approve.

President Eisenhower and a majority of Congress agree that farm income now is unreasonably low. They disagree, however, on measures needed to raise income to a level that would give farmers a living standard equal to that of urban people.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson insists that there is no quick or easy method of doing that. Congress insists that there has to be; that unless there is improvement soon, many thousands of farmers will be bankrupt and that this could drag the whole country into another 1932-33 depression.

The Benson farm program boils down to a 5-year plan. It is intended to solve the surplus problem and make good, by 1960, President Eisenhower's promise of fair prices in the market place. The program has five major parts.

1. Authority to adjust price supports for all crops except tobacco (fixed by law at 90 per cent of parity). For corn, cotton, wheat, rice and peanuts, supports must be between 75 per cent and 90 per cent of parity, and for most other crops from zero to 90 per cent of parity.

2. Authorizations for the use of more than $1 billion a year to subsidize exports of agricultural surpluses; plus half a billion for School Lunch and other disposal programs at home.

3. The $1.2 billion a year soil removal of about 45 million acres from cultivation. This program is available until 1960.

4. A greatly expanded program of agricultural research with emphasis on development of new markets. The most spectacular of these was authorization of $100 industrial uses of farm surpluses.

5. The Rural Development Program is intended to help low-income farmers (1) increase their farm income, or (2) find suitable employment elsewhere. This was tried experimentally last year in 15 counties in 24 states.

Johnson Brings In Farm Bill

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, as one of his first actions in the 85th Congress, last week introduced in the Senate a bill providing immediate additional assistance to farmers and stockmen in drought areas and setting up a program to restore drought-hit pasture land to productivity.

As immediate assistance, the Senator's proposal instructs the Secretary of Agriculture to give assistance in providing cottonseed cake to cattle owners.

The second section of the proposed program calls for conducting an extensive soil conservation program through the use of a deferred grazing plan.

"This would make it possible for stockmen to give their land a chance to recover from the effects of the drought, once it rains," Senator Johnson pointed out. "The bill would require the Department of Agriculture to make payments, at normal annual rental value, to landowners agreeing to defer the use of their depleted pasture lands for periods of not less than 12 months."

"In other words, the plan would make it possible for our stockmen to do what they know is sound from a conservation standpoint but what they cannot afford to do unless an adequate Government program is provided," Senator Johnson said.

An identical bill was introduced in the House of Representatives by members of the Texas Delegation.

You'll learn on a turn—
It's low for MORE than looks alone

AS YOU CAN plainly see, the gorgeous new 1957 Buicks are low—low to match the sleek silhouette of their modern sports-car styling—

Lower than any Buick in history—by as much as nearly four inches—and, mind you, with more interior room and without sacrificing an inch in road clearance.

But you'll soon learn that this sleek new lowness does more than add beauty to the Buick look. It brings new greatness to the Buick ride.

First time you twist 'round a corner or snake into an "S" curve, you'll learn how this new Buick's new lowness tames the turns. How it snugs the car to the road. How it cuts down the sidesway. How it gives you the safe-and-sure-footed steadiness of four wheels always on the road.

That's because these sweet-handling, sweet-riding beauties give you the lowest center of gravity in Buick annals—born of a brilliantly engineered new chassis that "nests" your ride low and steady as you go.

But the core of this new Buick's story is the action you get.

You get action that stems from the instant response of an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflo* so able and obedient and full-range in "Drive," even without a switch of the pitch, that the need for "Low" is virtually eliminated.

And it's action that's sparked by a brilliant new 364-cubic-inch V8 engine, of record-high horsepower and compression, and of almost complete freedom from vibration.

Tips Must Be Reported On Income Tax

Hotel porters, restaurant waiters and waitresses, and other employees receiving tips were reminded today by R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue in Austin, that tips are income and must be reported on their individual income tax returns.

"Tips, which represent compensation to the recipients, such as hotel, restaurant, and other employees who are customarily so paid, are taxable income."

"Tips paid directly to the employee and not accounted for by him to his employer are not subject to withholding. The employee is required to file a declaration of estimated tax if his tips for the year exceed $100," said Phinney.

"These employees are urged to keep accurate daily records of tips received. If the taxpayer's tax return is selected for audit he will be asked to produce such a record to substantiate the amount of tips reported. The record need not be complicated. A simple pocket diary is sufficient," Phinney added.

Farmers Facing Squeeze

Texas farmers will continue to be in a price-cost squeeze during 1957 although crop restrictions and increased agricultural exports may tend to relieve pressure created by large surpluses of cotton and wheat, says extension economist John G. McHaney.

Overall large supplies of agricultural products will prevent any great price increases to boost farmer income and production costs may even average slightly higher than 1956 figures, McHaney added.

Additional funds may still be in the farmer's reach, however, in view of a scheduled government agricultural expenditure rise from 4.9 billion dollars in 1955-56 to 5.7 billion for 1956-57 as a result of the Soil Bank Program. With a fair amount of rain in 1957, McHaney says the Texas farmer can expect a better year than 1956. The Suez situation and other world trouble spots will not tend to decrease the agricultural export market and a general level of good economic activity is predicted for the new year by McHaney.

Government economic and fiscal policy will definitely plan a leading role in the 1957 picture, he points out, and 1956-57 total outlay scheduled by the federal government is up 2.7 billion dollars over a year ago chiefly because of national security programs. Tighter credit and higher interest rates will probably make for a firmer check on expansive forces, but won't seriously affect a continuing strong demand for 1957 agricultural products.

Hours Of Therapy

How did I become a setup for polio?

Factors might have been working, too long hours, going to school, vacationing in Sacramento, California, where an epidemic was in progress. Three weeks later I had it (Incubation period of polio virus is three to 33 days.)

I wondered what was happening the morning of hospitalization, when even feeling lousy, I felt I had to shave. Walking across the living room, one leg gave way. I used a chair under my knee for a crutch, and shaved kneeling on a chair. Walking to the car, I used my Mother and a chair for crutches.

And as I laid there thinking, I realized I'd lost a lot and began with my left hand — eating, writing, typing.

But these thoughts were always interrupted by a change of hot packs, or a muscle stretching that worked like this:

The therapist would move your limbs through range of motion and, three or four times, forced them just a little farther. The muscles were so tight the pain would bring tears to the strongest man. There were others in the ward going through the same thing. Back stretching hurt the worst. The therapist would lock your arms behind your head, and then bend your torso down to your knees. Some of the fellows passed out during this part of the stretching.

Stretching lasted only during hotpicks. Then we were graduated to pool treatments.

The pool measuring 8 x 12 x 3, crossed lengthwise by two parallel sets of one-inch pipe, was filled with water steam heated to 100 degrees. Patients were placed on a canvas mat, and then electrically hoisted from stretcher to pool.

Once in the pool, they were safety-belted to the stretcher, so they would not slide off the canvas into the deeper water. Then therapy: a combination of Miss Hjelte's moving the individual muscles, your thought processes trying to make them move. Both of you were aided by the buoyancy of the water.

For example, she takes your leg: "bend your knee, straighten, roll out, roll in, bend your foot up and in, up and out, down and in, down and out. Now we'll stretch your hamstrings." Water buoyancy plus returning left arm strength found you grabbing the pipe, and through cheating, moving your legs in the water by rotating your whole body.

Exasperated, Miss Hjelte would stop and poutingly quip, "Don Wenzl! Quit cheating! You're not accomplishing what you're supposed to." SO we stopped cheating, tried to move muscle by muscle at her command, even though the cheating gave the delusory exhilaration that might have come from actually moving muscles.

Tail, good-looking, Honey-blond, two-piece bathing suited Miss Hjelte was wonderful. Most therapists stand outside the pool to work you over. And you see how after spending eight or nine hours in that warm enervating water, it was easy for her to become exasperated. There were so many polios that she was handling 40 a day when 16 is considered a heavy therapist load.

My young bachelor status was a blessing. Others weren't so lucky in family matters. One fellow's wife had a nervous breakdown, and another's left him to marry his brother.

Because my family lived in town, I went home much earlier (after 33 days) than usual. Ordinarily I'd have been hospitalized about 18 months. But doctors felt that home atmosphere, and the folks bringing me to the hospital daily for treatment was the best therapy I could get. Being at home would save the March of Dimes $20 a day.

Home meant a new life with the folks and six children aged two to 12. I was informed that at the outset, my condition was going to make little difference in the family schedule.

And, further, I could forget those ideas about being left handed, and "starting right now" would use that right hand at meal time, even if it took an hour for each meal. Secondly, I was in the family schedule, not vice versa. Rule number three was to do as much as you could for yourself, and if you couldn't get what you tried for, do without, until you were rested enough to try again.

Of course with all those youngsters around, the time went faster for me than it might have for others. And children adjust to a changed physical status more easily than adults. The kids were curious, with all sorts of questions, and then would brag to the neighbor children all they knew about polio. Possibly that may be why questions about it don't bother me today.

Veterans Reminded Of Land Sales

Texas veterans were reminded last week that they have only until Feb. 5th to submit bids on 56 tracts of land which the Veterans' Land Board has for sale.

Land Commissioner Earl Rucker, who is chairman of the VLB, explained that — unlike normal procedure in the Veterans' Land Program — veterans are not required to obtain an application number to purchase any of these tracts.

The lands to be sold, which are located in all sections of the state, including Medina County, have been forfeited by original owners who purchased the property through the Veterans' Land Program.

Rucker urged veterans who are interested in this sale to inquire immediately of the Veterans' Land Board in Austin for information.

Farm Loan Group Gives Net Worth

Medina County's National Farm Loan Association had a net worth of $178,347 as of Dec. 31, 1956, according to Wayne L. Sigler, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Capital stock totaled $74,055. The loan association finished 266 loans during 1956, while a total of 242 were completed in 1955. Net worth as of Dec. 31, 1955 was $132,885 or $45,462 less than 1956. Capital stock during 1955 was $60,775 or a $13,280 increase for 1956.

The Association jumped from four to five per cent interest on all loans made after Jan. 1, 1957.

Chevrolet shows you some important differences in low-priced cars just by the look on its face!

Wouldn't you say that most of the '57 cars look good from 50 feet away, but what about from 50 inches away?

What does a close-up of the grille tell you, for example? Is it solidly made like the new Chevrolet grille? Or, in comparison does it look less rich in design—feel less strong and solid? Compare the quality and construction of the bumpers and headlights, the fit of the chrome trim.

The more closely you look all around the car, the more clearly you'll see that Chevrolet has the edge in the way it's put together. You'll find, for instance, that Chevrolet is the only car in its field with a lacquer finish... that only Chevrolet Bel Air models give you foam rubber cushions in front and rear seats as standard equipment. These are just a few of the advantages of Body by Fisher. And Chevrolet, you know, is the only low-priced car that has a Fisher Body.

We'll be glad to give you a close-up, comparative look at this new Chevy any time you care to come in. This week, maybe?

It is time to be putting out fruit and pecan trees for this year. It is proven that certain varieties will do better in this area than others and is recommended that the adapted varieties be put out. Bulletin C-150 "Fruit Varieties for Texas" is available at the county agent's office for those interested in planting trees this year.

Two meetings were held in the county last year for those interested in planting sesame. The crop was not planted due to the drought, but several are interested in putting this crop in their plans for 1957. The following are some facts about sesame:

- (1). Will grow wherever cotton is grown, but does best on well drained, sandy loam soils.
- (2). Plant by April 15th in South Texas.
- (3). Depth of planting varies with soil types and moisture, but should never be more than two inches.
- (4). Plant in cultivated rows, 26 to 42 inches apart; seed requirements are about one pound per acre under dryland conditions and 1 1/2 pounds with irrigation.
- (5). Plant spacing should be about three inches dryland, one or two with irrigation.
- (6). Weed control during early seedling stage may be necessary.
- (7). Plants will emerge in three to five days and grow slowly for about three weeks.
- (8). Plants will reach a height of 30 to 72 inches.
- (9). Frequent or deep cultivation is not desirable.
- (10). Growing cycle will probably be about 110 days.

STORY NO. 4

Buy, Scare or Kill Him -- That's The Duval Rule For Successful Bossism

By--FRANZ ROSENWALD

SAN DIEGO, TEX.--The first thing any smart dictator does is destroy the freedom of the press. Dictatorship, whether it be called Nazism or Bossism, and a free press cannot exist together.

In a later article I want to tell you how the press played an indispensable role in the collapse of the Duval Duchy.

But right now I want to talk about Manuel Marroquin, who was beaten because his little newspaper published things the boys didn't like. It's a lot like other beatings I've seen in other places, halfway around the world.

The first Nazi storm trooper I ever saw was at a Hitler birthday rally in the Berlin Sports Palast.

He was a smiling, affable fellow, booted, wearing a Sam Brown belt over his neat khaki shirt. On his left arm was a swastika, emblem of good luck. At his side hung a dagger in its sheath.

Hundreds of his fellows were scattered about the huge hall, all smiling, all good natured, selling photographs of Der Fuehrer and copies of "Mein Kampf."

My storm trooper worked in a bakery not too far from my home. I knew him well. He was a bit on the round side, jolly, and he wouldn't hurt a fly.

This was long before Hitler came to supreme power in Germany.

Hitler made his grand entrance -- and a man near me laughed at the strutting little bantam rooster with the funny moustache.

My mild-mannered baker was on him in a second, beating him in the face with his fists, tearing his glasses off and flinging them in the aisle. Another storm trooper moved in, deliberately crunching the glasses under his heel, his dagger drawn and pointed at the man who was being beaten.

Nobody in the vicinity moved, and the ovation for Der Fuehrer roared on. The storm troopers hustled the man out. My mild-mannered baker returned in a few minutes, jovial, smiling, selling his pictures of Der Fuehrer.

The first pistolero I ever saw was just the other day in the Windmill Cafe in San Diego, Texas.

He was a smiling, affable fellow, booted and wearing a neat khaki shirt. Belted to his side was a .45 in a holster.

That same day I tape recorded the story of Manuel Marroquin, publisher of a little political paper called "New Duval," a paper dedicated to the destruction of the dictatorship of George Berham Parr.

The incident, the parallel with

Nazi Germany as described by Marroquin, occurred just a few weeks before I talked to him. Here is his story, taken directly from the recording:

"I was sitting in the San Diego Cafe drinking coffee with the school superintendent, Hernando de Pena, and two Daily Echo (the newspaper in Alice, Texas) reporters, Jake Lewis and a sports writer, a new fellow from Laredo named Dubose, when Mr. Amaya (Manuel Amaya, San Diego Chief of Police) came to the door. I could see Mr. Garza (Amado Garza, a San Diego policeman), his deputy, standing behind him.

"Mr. Amaya said 'Come out, I want to talk to you.'

"(The line between Jim Wells County and Duval County runs through the middle of the San Diego Cafe. Marroquin followed Amaya outside, being careful to move to the Jim Wells side of the line and about six feet from the East wall of the cafe. It was about 9:30 at night.)

"I asked him (Amaya) 'Why do you want to talk to me.' He was watching Mr. Garza because he had his gun out in his hand.

"Then all of a sudden, Wham! He (Amaya) hit me across here (indicating a livid partly-healed scar on his cheek) and I was bleeding bad. My glasses were gone.

"He (Amaya) said 'You talk too damn much in your paper.'

"I said 'That's no way to settle things. What don't you like about my paper? You can sue me for libel if you want to.'

"He said 'I'm going to kill you' and I said, 'Oh no you're not.' Then I turned and walked away and Mr. Garza said 'Come back, you coward.' I kept on walking. I was so hurt inside that I couldn't talk any more.

"I've often wondered what happened to the man in the Sports Palast in Berlin when the storm troopers got him outside.

I asked Marroquin why he had taken the beating so meekly, why he hadn't fought back. This is his answer, again taken directly from the tape:

"I would have got killed right there."

As John Ben Shepperd puts it, the Duval pattern is that of any other political dictatorship. Nazi, Communist or just plain old American-style "Bossism" run wild: If you can't buy him, or scare him--kill him!

That night Marroquin went to his home on the Jim Wells County side of the line. He didn't sleep. Instead he sat up all night with his Winchester across his knees. In Berlin during the Hitler terror people didn't sleep either.

The next day Marroquin was formally charged with disturbing the peace and resisting arrest. He was acquitted in court. A Jim Wells County court.

Let's take one more parallel case--and there are literally hundreds that might be cited. We'll consider Manuel Sanchez, a grocer. He's a Latin-American and his name is Spanish. The name is curiously close to that of Don Quixote's roly-poly squire in the famous Cervantes satire. But this Sanchez, also a roly-poly man who weighs over 400 pounds, isn't tilting at windmills.

Manuel Sanchez' name might have been Schultz and he might have lived in Berlin. His experience would have been the same.

Sanchez' sin in San Diego was to vote--and talk--against the machine of George Berham Parr.

Sanchez' business was placed under a strict boycott. He was threatened. People on relief (and these are many in Duval, particularly at election time) were ordered not to trade with him. His business was ruined. He might just as well have had "Juden" soaped on his window and storm troopers posted at his door.

In Hitler's Germany the terror hours were at night. It was a favorite sport of the storm troopers to route suspected enemies of the Reich out of bed, line up the family and glare powerful flashlights into their eyes. The troopers would say nothing, just stand back of the lights. Sometimes this would be repeated night after night for weeks. Eventually some member of the family would crack and blurt out a confession. The next stop would be a concentration camp.

Manuel Sanchez and his family were subjected to the same treatment in a modified form. Parr's bully boys would drive up to the Sanchez home at night and throw the blinding beams from strong flashlights into the faces of Sanchez and his family, into the frightened eyes of Sanchez' mother, who was ill. Sometimes George Parr took a personal part in these expeditions.

Hitler's storm troopers didn't bother to get search warrants when they pulled a raid. Parr's men at least went through the motions. Parr's sheriff obtained an illegal warrant and ripped Sanchez' store apart in a search for alleged narcotics. Sanchez was smart enough to get witnesses. No narcotics were found.

The story of a dictatorship cannot be fully told except in terms of living people--and we could go on and on with stories of Duval, each story with a counterpart in the Germany that I knew, the Germany from which I escaped. There's the story of Cristobal Ybanez who was personally beaten by Parr who swung a rifle at his head. But why go on?

Manuel Marroquin's story illustrates the pattern. A smart dictator and That's one of the big reasons why the Duval machine broke down, as I'll tell you about in another article.

Research Scientists Find New Grub Killer

By C. B. Gaston

High school graduates are entering the field of agricultural engineering in large numbers in recent years. Boys who are raised on farms and want to keep in touch with farming interests are finding this course very interesting and still allow them work in the engineering field.

Agricultural engineering provides services in the areas of (1) power and machinery, (2) soil and water management, 3) a agricultural processing, (4) rural electrification, (5) farm structures.

Research scientists with the USDA soon expect to report to the public a systemic insecticide that can be used in combatting the cattle grub. The product "Dow-ET-57" has been tested for several years and shows great promise in controlling the pest that has been costing the cattleman of this country about one hundred million dollars annually.

It has been observed that bur clover is making an early appearance in the home lawns this year. This pest can be considered a weed as it is often found in areas not desirable. Bur clover is an annual that produces a large number of seed each year, but an early spraying of 2,4-D will kill the plant and not harm the grass. If you plan to do something about ridding your lawn of bur clover, do not wait until a seed crop is set for you are furnishing the start for the following year.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By George Stewart

Coach Tom Moseley started hard workouts after the Owl-Pearsall basketball game, and turned up with results — a hard fought 58 to 45 victory over Carrizo Springs.

The Owls scrimmaged Yancey before the Carrizo game, and finished with two days of practice.

The Owlets still seem to be snake-bit. They lost to Carrizo Springs by a score of 41-31. The Carrizo game marked the second district game of the 1957 season and left the girls with a zero in the win column and two in the defeat column while the boys have won two and lost none.

Leazenby Runs Wild

Jimmy Leazenby has been a big difference in the Owl lineup. He was high point man against Pearsall with 16 points and again against Carrizo Springs, with 22 points. He scored 14 points against Pleasanton and 16 points against Edgewood of San Antonio, making him Hondo's leading scorer in the past four games.

Quick moving Leazenby took the ball from Carrizo Springs numerous times, moving on down court to sink two points each time. Twenty of his 22 points came from field goals — the other two from free throws. If Jimmy continues his present rate of scoring, he will be sure to break his last season record by a large margin.

Other high point men were Alvin Hartman, 16; Johnny Windrow, 11; Bobby Ward, 4; and Ray Highsmith, 1. Hondo collected more rebounds than usual, with Hartman getting 12, Ward, 7, Windrow, 6, Billy Neuman, 5, and Johnny Meyer, 1, for a total of 31 for the night's effort.

Half-time found the score Hondo 31, Carrizo 17.

Leazenby dunked a two pointer from mid-court just as the buzzer sounded for the end of the third period. He later fouled out, with 2:30 left in the game.

Scoring according to quarters was as follows:

Hondo	13	18	12	15
Carrizo	9	8	19	9
Final score Hondo 58, Carrizo Springs, 45.

The Pleasanton Game

Library Hopes Dismal

The Castroville Parent-Teacher Association heard letters from state senators and representatives regarding a proposed Medina County Library at the group's January meeting.

At present, all action must be postponed until a bill is passed by the State Legislature to finance the project. The Castroville PTA is pushing efforts to obtain a county library.

The club will sponsor a style show Friday, Feb. 1. Jack Mathis will serve as general chairman, and Mrs. Hermine Sittre in charge of skits. Mrs. Tschirhart, president of the group, has urged all members to assist in some way. The show will be the second money making project of the year and tickets will be 65 cents for adults and 35 cents for children.

Future Homemakers of America girls and their sponsor, Mrs. Eutah Evans, entertained the group with a style show. Dresses of every type were modeled. Some were made by students themselves and a few bought ready-made. Mrs. Evans acted as emcee.

Coffee and doughnuts were served to members and guests in the cafeteria following adjournment of the meeting. The Castroville PTA has grown to 60 members.

Numbers lined up for the PTA's February show include "From Eve on Down", a skit with Mrs. Norma Green as emcee; "What's My Pants", which will star Chuck Green as Noah Topbottom; Mrs. Hermine Sittre as his wife, Lilliam; Mrs. Henry Tschirhart as their daughter, Della Donna; and a "Black Face" act will feature Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Adams as George and Clandestine Highscouting, and Bill Fotjik as Arsenic Panhandle. Several additional numbers will be added before the meeting.

Acreage Increase Is Seen

"Superfarms" are beginning to dominate agricultural production in Texas as many farmers come to be big business men, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports.

James H. Keahey of the Bureau staff, writing in the Texas Business Review, says the trend toward consolidations in industry and business has spread to agriculture.

In a four-year period, the number of Texas farms decreased 12 per cent, but land devoted to agriculture increased 4 per cent. The result is that the average acreage per farm has risen from 438.5 acres to 498.3 acres, Keahey notes.

"The decrease in total farms has come from the absorption of the smaller units," the writer points out. "For instance, from 1950 to 1954, the number of farms with acreage between 100 and 139 acres dropped 19 per cent. At the same time, the number of big-acreage farms (500 acres or more) increased 5 per cent."

Larger farming units make possible the efficient use of more machinery, the Bureau writer says. He reports significant increases in the number of tractors, trucks, grain combines, pickup hay balers and corn pickers. During the same four-year period, the number of horses and mules on Texas farms decreased by 42 per cent. Growing mechanization also was reflected in the annual farm consumption of petroleum products, which increased 25 per cent.

FORTY-THREE POINTS were brought back from Colorado Dec. 23, by Wendell Griggs, Charles V. Green, both of Castroville, and John L. Gardner of San Antonio. The four bucks above have 15, 12, 8 and 8 points, and the three men say two of them were trophy heads. The kill was in San Juan National Forest. Green said they passed up 50-75 head of bucks while there. The trip took them 2,180 miles.
